Add your products to the System ¹

Add your products using our simple to use interface or you may choose to bulk upload all of your products, there are also a number of customised imports we can perform to import your products from existing websites.

² Add your images to the System

Image hosting is also included to ensure that your images are kept safely together with the products, you can resize and watermark each of your images in bulk to protect copying.

3 Set the prices and quantity per platform

You can control the available quantity to each of the platforms such as eBay and your own shopping carts, these can also have different prices, images and descriptions for an unlimited number of platforms.

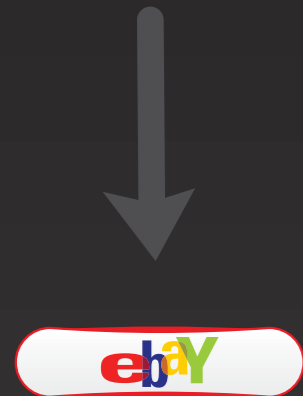

5 Publish products to our shopping cart Nventstore

For the total control of your inventory we recommend using our highly customisable cart technology, we can even take your existing website design and products.

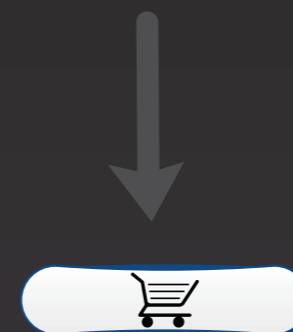

4 Publish products to eBay

Promote your products on the eBay platform using our proven technology that combines attractive designs and your product information.

6 Publish products to existing Shopping Carts

You can use our application to post products to your existing website using our highly customisable integration technology. This is where other applications fail to deliver because they have to fully rewrite the cart.

Publish products to other platforms

During 2010 we will be heavily adding extra functionality to other platforms such as Amazon and other cart technologies.

7

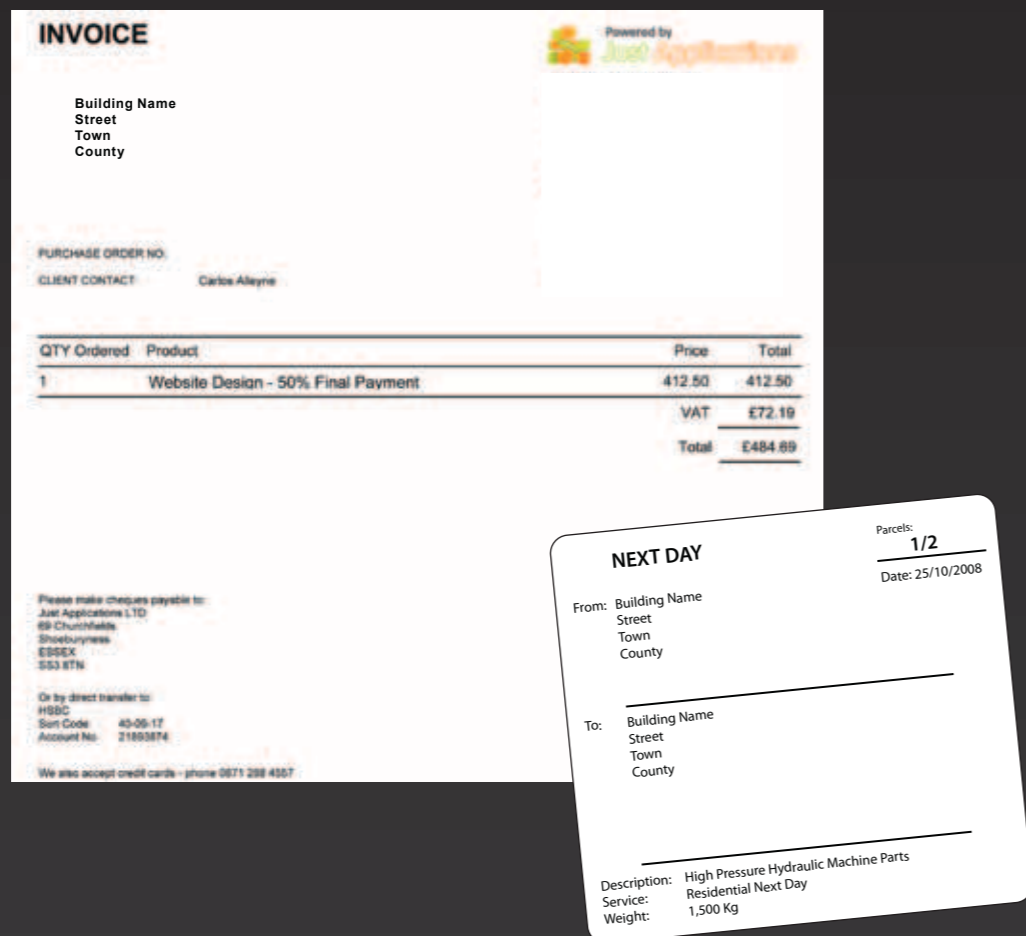

9 Print courier labels

Eliminate copy & paste or exporting into third party shipping applications, we have full logistical integration complete with automated tracking notifications.

8 View customer orders

Consolidated orders from multiple marketplaces such as eBay and your own websites in one easy to use system.

10 Product Reporting

We have a number of reports to identify the performing and non performing products from each of the marketplaces therefore allowing you to remain in control of your purchasing requirements.
